Product Summary

Product

An outbound AI voice agent for Divyasree Developers' Whispers of the Wind (WOW) project. The agent calls opted-in or assigned leads, introduces the project, qualifies fit in a 2-3 minute conversation, and requests a follow-up with a human Property Expert.

Project proposition

- Premium "Private Valley" villa plots in Nandi Valley, near Nandi Hills, North Bengaluru.
- Plot sizes: 1,200-3,199 sq. ft.
- Differentiators: 74% open spaces, a 20,000 sq. ft. clubhouse, eco-parks, scenic hill views, and a private low-density lifestyle.
- Price range: ₹92.4 lakh-₹2.46 crore, inclusive of taxes.
- Intended use: luxury weekend home, second home, or long-term investment.
- Possession target: December 2029; the project is ongoing and delivered in phases.

Problem

High-value real-estate leads need quick, respectful qualification before a sales executive invests time in a call. A scripted IVR is too rigid, while an unstructured AI call risks sounding pushy or giving inaccurate project information.

Outcome

The agent should make a premium first impression, understand the lead's intent and fit, handle common objections naturally, and create a clear next action for the sales team without pretending to be a human or making unsupported promises.

Target User

Primary user: prospective buyer

- HNIs, CXOs, business owners, senior professionals, and NRIs.
- Interested in a weekend home, family retreat, second home, or real-estate investment.
- May be unfamiliar with the Nandi Hills/Devanahalli corridor.
- May prefer English or Hindi.
- Expects privacy, discretion, and a non-intrusive sales experience.

Secondary user: Property Expert / sales team

- Receives qualified lead summaries and follow-up requests.
- Needs to know intent, location fit, budget band, timeline, language, objections, and preferred callback time.

Core User Journey

1. The agent calls the lead and identifies itself as an AI assistant calling on behalf of Divyasree Developers. 2. It mentions Whispers of the Wind and Nandi Valley, then asks permission to speak. 3. If the lead is busy or declines, the agent acknowledges that choice, offers a callback option, and ends politely. 4. If permission is granted, the agent asks only the qualification questions still unanswered:

- Intent: self-use, weekend home, family use, or investment.
- Geography: comfort with Nandi Hills/Devanahalli and travel expectations.
- Budget: fit with the ₹92.4 lakh starting price and likely budget band.
- Timeline: comfort with an ongoing, phased project and December 2029 possession target.

5. The agent gives a short aspirational pitch tailored to the stated intent. It highlights the Private Valley lifestyle, open spaces, clubhouse, eco-parks, hill views, and community without overwhelming the lead. 6. The agent handles questions or objections using approved project facts. If it does not know an answer, it says so and offers a Property Expert follow-up. 7. The agent asks for a follow-up call with a Property Expert, confirms the preferred day/time and language, and closes with a concise recap. 8. The sales team receives a structured lead outcome: qualified, nurture, callback requested, not a fit, do-not-call, or unreachable.

Epics And User Stories

Epic 1: Respectful outbound introduction

- As a lead, I want to know who is calling and why so that I can decide whether to continue.

Acceptance criteria:

- The opening identifies the caller as an AI assistant/Divyasree consultant calling for Divyasree Developers.
- It names the project and location: Whispers of the Wind, Nandi Valley near Nandi Hills in North Bengaluru.
- It asks for permission to speak before qualification begins.
- If the lead says "not now," "busy," or similar, the agent does not continue selling.
- The agent can offer a callback and ends courteously if permission is denied.

Epic 2: Intent qualification

- As a lead, I want to explain why I am considering the property so that the conversation feels relevant.

Acceptance criteria:

- The agent identifies at least one intent: self-use, weekend/second home, family use, investment, or undecided.
- If the lead volunteers intent early, the agent acknowledges it and does not ask the same question again.
- The agent uses an affirmation such as "Understood" or "Perfect" before moving on.
- The recorded summary preserves the lead's own wording where useful.

Epic 3: Geography and access fit

- As a lead, I want the agent to check whether the location works for me before discussing a site visit.

Acceptance criteria:

- The agent checks comfort with the Nandi Hills/Devanahalli corridor.

- It may ask a single practical follow-up about travel frequency, current location, or acceptable drive time.
- If the lead is not comfortable with the location, the agent acknowledges the mismatch without arguing.
- A location mismatch is recorded separately from a budget mismatch.

Epic 4: Budget fitment

- As a lead, I want a transparent price-fit check so that I do not waste time on an unsuitable property.

Acceptance criteria:

- The agent states that pricing starts at ₹92.4 lakh and goes up to ₹2.46 crore, inclusive of taxes.
- It asks whether that starting level is broadly comfortable; it does not pressure the lead to disclose exact net worth or financing details.
- If the lead shares a budget early, the agent uses it and does not repeat the budget question.
- A budget below the starting price is classified as nurture/not a fit unless the lead explicitly wants future updates.
- The agent never invents discounts, payment plans, returns, rental yields, or appreciation guarantees.

Epic 5: Timeline and project-status qualification

- As a lead, I want to understand delivery timing so that I can judge whether the project matches my plans.

Acceptance criteria:

- The agent clearly states that the project is ongoing, delivered in phases, and has a possession target of December 2029.
- It asks whether the lead is comfortable with that timeline.
- If the lead requires immediate possession, the agent records the mismatch and does not misrepresent availability.
- If the lead asks for construction or legal specifics, the agent offers a Property Expert follow-up rather than guessing.

Epic 6: Premium, tailored project pitch

- As a qualified or curious lead, I want to hear why WOW is distinctive so that I can decide whether a human conversation is worthwhile.

Acceptance criteria:

- The pitch is concise enough to keep the total call within approximately 2-3 minutes.
- It uses "Private Valley" as the central lifestyle idea.
- It mentions at least two relevant benefits from open spaces, clubhouse, eco-parks, hill views, and community.
- It adapts emphasis: lifestyle and privacy for self-use; access, scarcity, and long-term ownership context for investment-without promising returns.
- The tone is premium, warm, conversational, and non-intrusive.

Epic 7: Natural conversation and language handling

- As a lead, I want the agent to sound attentive and understandable in my preferred language.

Acceptance criteria:

- The agent uses short turns, affirmations, and one question at a time.
- It does not re-ask a question already answered.
- It tolerates interruptions, brief answers, corrections, and normal hesitation.
- It supports English and Hindi, including a user-requested switch mid-call.
- Pronunciation is consistent: Divyasree ("Div-yaa-shree"), Nandi ("Nun-dhee"), lakh ("laak"), and crore ("kroh-r").
- If the language is unsupported or unclear, the agent offers English or Hindi and a human callback.

Epic 8: Questions, objections, and edge cases

- As a lead, I want honest answers and an easy exit when the property is not suitable.

Acceptance criteria:

- Irritated or skeptical leads receive an apology/acknowledgment and a choice to end the call; the agent does not debate.
- A lead who asks for exact legal, title, approval, loan, or construction information is routed to a Property Expert.
- A budget-fit but location-mismatch lead is classified as location not fit, not qualified.
- A location-fit but budget-mismatch lead can opt into future updates.
- A lead who asks to stop calls is marked do-not-call and receives no follow-up request.
- Silence, voicemail, bad audio, or repeated "hello?" results in a safe retry/termination outcome rather than fabricated responses.

Epic 9: Follow-up conversion and handoff

- As a sales team member, I want a clean handoff so that I can continue the conversation without asking the same questions again.

Acceptance criteria:

- The agent asks for a follow-up with a Property Expert only after the lead has shown interest or asked for more information.
- It captures preferred callback day/time and language when provided.
- It confirms the lead's preferred contact channel if supported by the campaign.
- The handoff summary includes intent, geography fit, budget fit, timeline fit, key questions/objections, and requested next step.
- The lead outcome is one of: qualified, callback requested, nurture, not a fit, do-not-call, or unreachable.
- The agent never claims that a callback is booked unless the scheduling system confirms it.

Conversation Requirements

Opening behavior

The opening should be approximately 15-25 seconds and follow this pattern:

"Hello, may I speak with [Name]? I'm an AI assistant calling on behalf of Divyasree Developers about Whispers of the Wind, our Private Valley villa-plot community near Nandi Hills in North Bengaluru. Is this a good time for a quick two-minute conversation?"

The exact wording can vary, but the permission check is mandatory.

Qualification behavior

- Ask no more than four core qualification questions unless the lead is highly engaged.
- Use answers already volunteered; maintain a conversation state so the agent does not repeat itself.
- Keep the call near 2-3 minutes; offer a human follow-up for deeper questions.

Approved factual guardrails

The agent may state only the supplied project facts: plot size range, location, 74% open spaces, 20,000 sq. ft. clubhouse, eco-parks, hill views, price range inclusive of taxes, and December 2029 possession target. Any other fact must be framed as "a Property Expert can confirm that."

Pronunciation dictionary

Divyasree	Div-yaa-shree
Whispers of the Wind	Wihs-pers of the Wind
Nandi	Nun-dhee
Devanahalli	Deh-vah-nah-hul-lee
lakh	laak
crore	kroh-r
₹92.4 lakh	ninety-two point four lakh
₹2.46 crore	two point four six crore

Edge Cases

- Busy: acknowledge, offer a callback window, end.
- No permission: stop qualification immediately.
- Irritated: apologize, ask whether to end, respect the answer.
- Not interested: ask once whether future updates are welcome; otherwise close and suppress future calls.
- Budget below ₹92.4 lakh: explain the starting price once, offer nurture only if requested.
- Location mismatch: acknowledge; do not try to overcome with an unrelated pitch.
- Timeline mismatch: explain December 2029 and phased delivery once; classify as timeline mismatch if unsuitable.
- NRI / international number: ask preferred time zone and preferred callback language; avoid making tax or remittance claims.
- Hindi request: switch to Hindi while preserving project names and pricing clarity; switch back on request.
- Unknown question: say the information needs confirmation and offer a Property Expert call.
- Do-not-call request: confirm the request and end; do not ask additional qualification questions.
- Wrong person / shared phone: apologize and end without revealing sensitive lead details.

- Silence / poor connection: ask once for confirmation, then end safely and mark unreachable if needed.
- Duplicate lead: avoid repeated outreach when the CRM indicates a recent completed call.

What We Are Building

- A working outbound voice-agent demo with a 2-3 minute primary call flow.
- English and Hindi support with user-requested language switching.
- A system prompt containing role, conversation rules, factual guardrails, edge-case behavior, and pronunciation dictionary.
- Lead outcome classification and a structured handoff summary.
- At least five recorded test conversations covering:
 1. Qualified self-use lead.
 2. Investment lead asking about returns.
 3. Budget-fit but location-mismatch lead.
 4. Irritated lead requesting no further calls.
 5. Hindi-speaking lead requesting a callback.
- A shareable demo link or downloadable audio files for the five test flows.
- A PDF export of the final system prompt.

What We Would Add With More Time

- Calendar integration with confirmed appointment booking and reminders.
- CRM sync, lead deduplication, consent/audit logs, and campaign dashboards.
- More Indian-language support and regional pronunciation tuning.
- Personalization from brochure/website activity and lead source.
- Agent-assist view for live human takeover.
- Call-quality analytics, sentiment trends, and A/B testing of opening and pitch variants.
- Automated compliance review, call recording retention controls, and number reputation monitoring.

Non-Goals

- The agent will not negotiate pricing or promise discounts.
- The agent will not provide legal, title, approval, tax, loan, construction, or investment advice.
- The agent will not guarantee appreciation, rental yield, resale value, or possession beyond the supplied target.
- The agent will not complete a sale, collect payment, or replace the Property Expert.
- The first demo will not require a full production CRM or multi-region telephony deployment.

Success Metrics

- Permission-to-continue rate.
- Completed qualification rate.
- Percentage of calls with all four fitment checkpoints captured.
- Qualified-lead and callback-request rate.

- Do-not-call compliance rate: 100% of explicit requests honored.
- Repetition/error rate in reviewed calls.
- Human reviewer score for premium tone, factual accuracy, and naturalness.
- Median call duration between 2 and 3 minutes for engaged leads.

Submission Proof Points

- Shareable demo link or five labeled audio recordings.
- System-prompt PDF with pronunciation guide.
- One-page call-flow diagram or transcript showing permission, four checkpoints, pitch, and CTA.
- Test matrix documenting expected outcomes for qualified, nurture, not-fit, do-not-call, and unreachable cases.
- Short demo notes explaining which platform, voice, language settings, and handoff mechanism were used.
